

ENTOMOLOGY SEMINARS SPRING 2009

Tuesdays - 4:00 p.m. - East Campus Union

- January 20A Biotic Survey and Inventory of the Dynastine Scarab Beetles of Mesoamerica, North America, and the West Indies: Review of a Long-term, Multi-country Project
Dr. Brett C. Ratcliffe, Entomology Department
- January 27Mentoring and Investment in Human Capital
Dr. John E. Foster, Entomology Department
- February 3Tick and Tick-borne Diseases
Ralph Narain, Entomology Graduate Student
- February 10Use of Neem (Azadirachta indica) to Control Bruchids on Cowpeas (Vigna unguiculata)
Bamphitlhi "Banks" Tiroesele, Entomology Graduate Student
- February 17Cellulose Digestion in Insects: Harnessing the Potential of Biofuel Production
Sek Yee Tan, Entomology Graduate Student
- February 24Population Regulating Factors for the Japanese beetle, Popillia japonica Newman, in the United State and Japan.
Kentaro Miwa, Entomology Graduate Student
- March 3Insect Pollination of Cultivated Crops
Jeremy Wagnitz, Entomology Graduate Student
- March 10Medicinal Maggots: Past, Present, and Future
Amanda, Fujikawa, Entomology Graduate Student
- March 17Spring Vacation
- March 24To be announced
- March 31The AMOVA for Entomologists
Erica Lindroth, Entomology Graduate Student
- April 7Bee Diversity and Attractiveness of Native Flora and the Megachilidae of Nebraska
Dori Porter, Entomology Graduate Student
- April 14The Impact of Arthropod-vectored Diseases in the U.S. Military Lanae Pierson, Entomology Graduate Student
- April 21Insect Nutritional Physiology: Basic and Applied Applications
Dr. Spencer T. Behmer, Entomology Department, Texas A & M University
- April 28Insects or Bushmeat: Conservation Efforts in the Upper Guinean Forests of Ghana
Dr. T. Keith Philips, Biology Department, Western Kentucky University
-
- 